angular momentum, L

Angular momentum, or moment of momentum of a particle about a point is a vector quantity equal to the vector product of the position vector of the particle and its momentum, $L = r \times p$. For special angular momenta of particles in atomic and molecular physics different symbols are used.

Source:
Green Book, 2nd ed., p. 12