

isoelectric

A macro-ion of a polyampholyte (in particular a protein) is said to be isoelectric if it exhibits no electrophoresis.

Source:

PAC, 1972, 31, 577 (Manual of Symbols and Terminology for Physicochemical Quantities and Units, Appendix II: Definitions, Terminology and Symbols in Colloid and Surface Chemistry) on page 618