

maximum tolerable exposure level (MTEL)

Maximum amount or concentration of a substance to which an organism can be exposed without leading to an adverse effect after prolonged exposure time.

Source:

PAC, 1993, 65, 2003 (Glossary for chemists of terms used in toxicology (IUPAC Recommendations 1993)) on page 2068