

spectrochemical carrier

in atomic spectroscopy

An additive which gives rise to a gas which can help to transport the vapour of the sample material into the excitation region of the source, e.g. carbon in an air atmosphere when carbon dioxide is formed.

Source:

Orange Book, p. 160